Market commentary

Fears over the outlook for global economic growth and Europe's sovereign debt difficulties weighed on equity markets over the quarter. The FTSE All-Share index rose just over 1.5%, building on the 1% increase it made during the previous three months. The period brought a notable change in market leadership as concerns about the strength of economic recovery prompted a move out of economically sensitive areas of the market, such as mining, into areas with more stable earnings, such as tobacco and pharmaceuticals. Gains on other markets were less pronounced. In the US, talk abounded of an unexpected "soft patch" in the economy; as a result, equity markets ended the period more or less where they started. Europe was only marginally ahead as eurozone politicians and policymakers deliberated over Greece's worsening financial situation; and Japan continued to struggle in the aftermath of the March earthquake (though it was ahead over June). Developed Asian and emerging markets were also down.
